

Can Chocolate Look More Tasty Due to Data-Driven Modelling?

M Niezgódka

ICM University of Warsaw, marekn@icm.edu.pl

Complex processes in technology and real world produce at mathematical modelling and optimization quite unexpected challenges. Accounting for scale of data sets, their heterogeneity and multi-physics frameworks prove necessary there at creating practically useful models. An experience with a suite of problems faced at chocolate manufacturing processes will serve as illustration.